Sullivan's Youth Service Recognized By Club Award

A citation for "unusually devoted service to boys" and the bronze Boys Club medallion from the national Boys Clubs of America Ass'n were presented to Frank W. Sullivan, Lewiston, at the annual Lewis-Clark Valley Boys Clubs banquet last night.

Sullivan, 600 18th Ave., is the third recipient of the medallion in the Lewis-Clark Valley organization. Other winners are Douglas Eier and Irv Faling.

Included in the citation, which was presented by Dr. William C. Mannschreck, past president, was a list of Sullivan's services to the organization. Sullivan has been a member of the board of directors since 1949 and during that time has been secretary, vice president, president, and chairmen of numerous committees.

Officers Installed

The award, which had been kept a surprise until the banquet, was presented during a program which included several speeches and the installation of four officers and 10 new directors.

Robert Culbertson, main speaker for the evening, told the 72 present the Lewis-Clark Valley Boys Clubs reach more youngsters who have been in trouble with the law than any other private youth program in the community.

Culbertson, youth rehabilitation officer for the Idaho Department of Health, said that while the clubs help "many hundreds of boys who are not delinquent," the clubs also reach successfully many delinquent and underprivileged youths.

"A larger number of children who have been in difficulty come to the Boys Club in Lewiston than to any other program of its kind in north Idaho," Culbertson said.

Culbertson stressed the need for a correction of the public image of children, providing youths with more opportunities to have responsibilities and build creative activities, such as painting, singing and the playing of musical instruments.

D. C. Kesler, incoming president, outlined plans for the coming year. He urged the establishment of a permanent camp site for Boys Clubs members and a gymnasium for the Lewiston Orchards Club.

Dr. Mannschreck reviewed the progress of the clubs last year. Installing officer was Eier.
